- Sally: Hi, Pete.
Peter: Hey, what's up?
Sally: Not much. Did you hear about Vanessa's Aussie hunk?
Peter: Hunk? No ... is she dating someone?
Sally: Haven't you heard about her co-worker Marco? She's drooling all over him. Marco's so clever, well-traveled and so good-looking ... blah ... blah ... blah ... blah.
Peter: You sound a little jealous.
Sally: No, I'm not. I think Vanessa is a little naive sometimes.
Peter: Naive?
Sally: Well, she falls for guys so easily.
Peter: Maybe they just have a lot in common.
Sally: He sounds more like a charmer ... a love them and leave them kind of guy.
Peter: Don't worry, you won't be single for long.
Sally: I can never meet anyone around here I would actually want to date.
Peter: Hmmm ... Some guys have all the luck.

Learning Points

Sentence Stress

Sentence stress gives English its rhythm or "beat".

Word stress is emphasis on one syllable within a word.

Sentence stress is emphasis on certain words within a sentence.

Most sentences have two basic types of words:

Content words

- Content words are the important or key words of a sentence. They provide the meaning of the sentence.

Structure words

- Structure words are not important words. They are small words that you use to make the sentence correct.

Placing the stress on the wrong syllable in a word or placing stress on the wrong word in a sentence may lead to confusion or loss of meaning.

Examples:

- No ... is she da tingsomeone?
- Haven't you heard about her co-worker Marco?
- Well she falls for guys so easily.
- I can never meet anyone around here I would actually want to date.
